history
founded 1994 by CERN and European Universities to administer specialised schools main partners: CERN, Conseil Générale de Haute-Savoie, European universities, ENIGMASS

international vocation mainly focused on European and neighbouring countries international advisory boards for each school European credits recognised by partner universities and organisations applied science and technology formation and training accelerators, their technologies and applications (1994)

medical physics (1998)
(astro-)particle physics instrumentation (2014)
CNAM courses (conservatoire national des arts et métiers) bio-informatics with Grenoble, . . .

campus
students and teachers working and living together